Thanks to compassionate individuals, we managed to save and treat three puppies suffering from a severe, deadly illness.

On June 22, UAnimals received a request from soldiers to evacuate nine puppies from Tiahynka in the Kherson region. Unfortunately, our team was not able to promptly retrieve the animals, so the soldiers handed them over to volunteer Natalia Derhach from the Tobias. Kherson Animals NGO for temporary shelter.

Regrettably, five of the puppies fell ill with enteritis (inflammation of the small intestine), prompting Natalia to seek help from the DoctorVet clinic.

The clinic immediately started treating the puppies. We covered the entire cost of IV drips, medications, and procedures. The veterinarians managed to stabilize the condition of four of the pups and stop the bleeding, but sadly, one puppy passed away the first night, and later, the illness claimed a second.

However, three of the puppies overcame the illness thanks to the compassionate efforts of the clinic's doctors. We then transferred them from the clinic to the Zoofamily shelter in Pavlysh.

Total spent on the puppies' treatment: 48,928 UAH.

Dana the dog was rescued from the water following the Russian attack on the Kakhovka Hydroelectric Power Plant. Volunteers evacuated her to Tetiana Kutsukon's shelter in the Kyiv region.

Dana experienced severe stress and continued to be anxious due to ongoing explosions in the city. Eventually, her health deteriorated, and veterinarians diagnosed diabetes. She needed regular insulin and a special diet.

Despite all efforts, Dana could not stand or eat, requiring further examination, including a CT scan. Unfortunately, this did not yield results, and her condition worsened. Dana's body ultimately could not withstand the severe illness.

Total spent on Dana's treatment:

26,234 UAH.
